RESPONSIBLE INVESTING

We're strong advocates of responsible investing (also known as sustainable investing). Responsible investing means when we're considering whether to invest in a company, we don't just look at their financial performance. We also look at their environmental, social and governance (ESG) performance, because we believe these factors have a big impact on long-term returns.

MARKET AND FUND REVIEW

Global bonds were mostly lower for the second straight month as the prospect of early interest rate cuts subsided largely on the back of stronger-than-expected US economic data. Firstly, employment figures showed that the labour market remains tight, while wage inflation is also elevated. Meanwhile, strong retail sales figures underpinned the resilience of the US economy. Adding further pressure on bond prices was January inflation data, which came in slightly above expectations.

European bonds were also lower in February. Despite some softer-than-expected inflation data across the continent, policymakers there pushed back against the idea of early interest rate cuts.

Meanwhile, in New Zealand, bond prices had a volatile month, beginning on the back foot, following global markets lower. The sell-off continued after the employment report showed the labour market remained historically tight, likely to keep upward pressures of wages. However, after the Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) left interest rates unchanged and delivered a relatively dovish statement, bonds clawed back some losses.

It was a better story in equity markets with several global share markets making all-time highs, driven largely by ongoing strength in the tech sector as the artificial intelligence (AI) boom continued. Japanese shares were some of the better performing, while New Zealand share markets struggled, with the NZX 50 one of the few global share markets to end the month lower.

Fund performance was largely impacted by weaker bond prices across the board, which weighed on most bond-dominant portfolios. However, a strong showing from its small allocation to equities meant the fund was able to claw its way back to mostly flat.

We maintain our defensive position, holding an underweight to global equities and an overweight to domestic and international fixed interest. Our base case is that US Growth remains positive over the short term, with weaker growth in Europe and New Zealand. Labour market demand continues to soften bringing it more in line with labour supply. Core inflation makes slow progress towards target, with central banks holding rates in restrictive territory. Finally, an extended period of tight monetary policy eventually weighs on growth enough to tip it into negative territory, consistent with a mild recession.
